1. An all weather road [924] runs from Satoraljaujhely southwest toward Miskolc via Sarospatak. Another all weather road [924] runs from Satoraljaujhely north northwest to the Hungarian-Czechoslovakian border via Fuzerkomlos. Another all weather road [924] runs from Satorljaujhely across the border into Czechoslovakia and goes northward where it runs toward Kosice.
2. The above roads have good solid foundations and are over three lanes wide. The roads are capable of absorbing heavy usage and are fairly well maintained. The roads are macadam surfaced and are considered to be first class highways.
3. A loose surface, all weather road [909] runs from Satoraljaujhely northward, encircling the Magas hill and goes southward to Karolyfalva. The road is over two lanes wide and is capable of being used for heavy traffic.
4. A number of loose surface, dry weather dirt roads [935] run in the vicinity of Scmlyod, Barazda and Satoraljaujhely. The dirt roads are approximately two lanes wide and occasionally are capable of absorbing heavy usage. However, when it rains hard the canals which run in the vicinity of the dirt roads, tend to overflow the river banks and flood the dirt roads. It would take a day or two before the waters receded. During this time it was easier to drive on the fields.
